Quick Updates

- The final Pinon Canyon EIS is available, go to: http://www.hqda.army.mil/acsim/brac/nepa_eis_docs.htm you may also want to visit this location http://aec.army.mil/usaec/cultural/index.html concerning Section 106 responsibilities without SHPO oversight. Also see a summary report below by Lucy Bambrey on the May 23, 2007 BLM Front Range Resource Advisory Council (RAC) meeting.

- Another thing worth mentioning on the PCMS expansion front. In June the US House of Representatives voted 383-34 for an amendment authored by Republican Rep. Marilyn Musgrave (4th Congressional District) and co-sponsored by Democrat Rep. John Salazar (3rd Congressional District). The amendment stipulates that no funding in the 2008 Military Construction Appropriations Act be used to expand the Piñon Canyon site. Whether the Senate will retain this language in their version remains to be seen.

- Meanwhile, we have had no response from the Directorate of Environmental Compliance and Management regarding CCPA's request to be a consulting party, but perhaps we will after the Congressional vote on funding.

- Pinon Canyon, CO also made the National Trust for Historic Preservation's 2007 "11 Most Endangered Places" list. The link from their website shows, among other things, University of Colorado, Colorado Springs field school students working on the Lopez Plaza site on the Comanche National Grasslands, Picketwire Canyon. https://www.nationaltrust.org/11most/10.html

- Next year's annual CCPA meeting will be April 11-13 in Fort Collins so that we have a good chance of taking advantage of the field trips to Lindenmeier site and the Soapstone ranch. Mark your calendar now.

- The CCPA summer board meeting was rescheduled for Salida on Saturday, August 25th at 11:30 am. The plan is for a two hour meeting with lunch on the deck at Bongo Billy’s Salida Café. Please RSVP to Bridget if you haven’t done so already.

- Colorado History: A Context for Historical Archaeology is the latest publication available from CCPA. Order your copy today using the attached order form or go online to www.coloradoarchaeologists.org

- Colorado Preservation, Inc. has issued the 2008 Most Endangered Places List nomination form. Nominations are due August 1, 2007. www.coloradopreservation.org

- A summary of the Board meeting on March 30th is below; the 2007 General Membership Meeting Minutes and Treasurer’s Report are forthcoming.

President’s Corner
Bridget Ambler

Summer is in full swing and, no doubt, many of you are immersed in the 2007 summer field season! Since the last newsletter, the CCPA PCMS task force has continued to monitor potential expansion efforts for the Piñon Canyon Maneuver Site. Most recently in the news, the Department of Defense has revised expansion plans to include more private property to the north and west and avoid Picketwire Canyon and Comanche National Grasslands. While it is a positive sign that public outcry over the threat to cultural and environmental resources was apparently effective in revising the PCMS expansion plan, cultural resources on private property will still be affected by the revised expansion plan. Accordingly, the CCPA PCMS Task Force and Board will keep up-to-date on the situation and will continue the dialogue already begun with other stakeholders on the issue.

The CCPA summer Executive Committee meeting has been scheduled for August 25 and will be held in Salida. Please let an Executive Committee member know if you would like items added to the agenda. Until then, may you have a fruitful summer!

Ceramic Expert Priscilla Ellwood is Honorary Doctorate Recipient
Thanks to Judith Halasi for the Update

CCPA member Priscilla Elwood received an Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa, from the University of Colorado at Boulder on May 11, 2007. Congratulations to Priscilla on behalf of the Colorado Council of Professional Archaeologists. Here is a summary of some of her accomplishments.

Support for this nomination was from a broad group of archaeologists, representing the University of Colorado, Colorado State University, the University of Colorado Museum, from archaeologists doing private contracting in the state and region, and from ceramic specialists from several other states, including New Mexico and Wisconsin.

Priscilla Ellwood has devoted her career to researching ceramics and is recognized as an authority on prehistoric ceramics in Colorado, the Southwest, and the Great Plains. She began working at the University of Colorado Museum as a graduate student in 1978, and has contributed significantly to the museum ever since, fielding queries from fellow researchers, assisting students, identifying the pottery collections housed at the museum, and conducting workshops and seminars throughout the region. Her commitment to science and research, along with her skill at analyzing and interpreting pottery representing various cultural groups, has made her an invaluable resource to students and colleagues.

It is noteworthy that very little of her work has been conducted for monetary compensation, including her 30 years of service at the University of Colorado Museum. Her contributions reflect a genuine love... for the subject matter, joy in the pursuit of knowledge, and a selflessness demonstrated repeatedly by her assistance to others.

One of Ellwood’s most significant professional achievements is her documentation of 37 whole and partial prehistoric pots in eastern Colorado. She spent 16 years seeking out and analyzing the vessels, most of which were held in private collections. Her research resulted in the publication Native American Ceramics of Eastern Colorado, which was published in 2002 by the University of Colorado Museum as part of its Natural History Inventory of Colorado series. This volume is one of the few definitive treatments of the subject, and established Ellwood as an authority on the ancient Native American pottery of eastern Colorado.

Since earning a master’s degree in anthropology and archaeology from the University of Colorado in 1978, Ellwood has worked as a laboratory technician, laboratory director, ceramic advisor and coordinator, and consultant. She has served as a research associate of prehistoric ceramics at the University Museum since 1995.

Christian Zier, president of Centennial Archaeology, Inc., said of Ellwood, “The esteem in which Priscilla is held by her professional peers is perhaps best expressed in the confidence that is placed in her judgment and expertise. When an archaeologist in Colorado seeks assistance in ceramic analysis of any sort, whether it be with a large collection or a single fragment of pottery, the advice he or she receives is always the same: ‘Ask Priscilla.’”

Pueblo Chemical Depot Heritage Exhibit Opens
Max Canestorp, PCD Cultural Resources Manager
Marilyn A. Martorano, RMC Consultants, Inc

Pueblo Chemical Depot (PCD), located east of Pueblo, Colorado, recently installed an exhibit in the Southeastern Colorado Heritage Center in downtown Pueblo. The exhibit features the depot’s past, present, and future. PCD contracted with RMC Consultants, Inc., to administer the project, and John Carr, of Atomic Exhibits, designed, constructed, and installed the display. Lieutenant Colonel John M. Riley, PCD Commander, and Colonel (ret.) Jim Bates, Commander at PCD from 1976 to 1978, and Marvin Stein, Chair of the Pueblo Depot Activity Development Authority, cut the ribbon to open the exhibit to the public on Friday, May 4th. Many of the depot’s past and present employees were on hand for the event.

The exhibit includes artifacts and memorabilia from PCD, and many old photographs depicting depot life through the years. It addresses such themes as the depot’s many missions in support of the Army here and abroad; its relationship with the surrounding communities and the diverse workforce that has lived, worked, and played on the site; the Pershing Missile and chemical stockpile demilitarization programs; HiPaRdni Park; the area’s natural and cultural resources; environmental restoration; reuse; and the depot’s future.

Find out why this sign is in Russian!

The depot can now be “visited” without making the drive out from Pueblo. The Southeastern Colorado Heritage Center is located at 201 West B Street, in the historic train depot, only a few minutes from I-25. Hours of operation are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 AM through 4 PM. Admission is free, and there are many nearby restaurants, galleries, and shops in the surrounding renovated downtown area. The Southeastern Colorado Heritage Center staff and PCD invite all CCPA members and friends to come and experience Pueblo Chemical Depot at the Heritage Center!

Twenty Five Years Ago In Colorado Archeology

1982 – Summer

- CCPA named its first Fellows: Marie Wormington, Joe Ben Wheat, Omer Stewart and Al Lancaster. This is an honorary CCPA membership status, reserved for those archeologists of senior status who have made major contributions to archeological understanding and advancement in this state or who have supported and inspired many of today’s young professionals.

- CCPA sent letters to all Colorado Congressmen and Congresswomen and Senators urging restoration of the Historic Preservation Fund, which had been dropped from the FY1983 budget. Funding was restored.

- A formal review was made of “Environmental Impact Statement for Training Land Acquisition, Fort Carson, Colorado, pointing out lacks from an archaeological preservation/management standpoint and urging appropriate consideration of the archaeological remains in both Pinyon Canyon and the Huerfano Parcel. Many CCPA members contributed letters that were included in the final EIS.

- CCPA was invited to take a formal role in the CAS Archeological Advisory Committee. This committee was established during negotiations surrounding the State antiquity act by formal agreement between the State Historical Society and the archeological community, then solely represented by CAS.

Report on Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site Expansion
Lucy Bambrey

On May 23, 2007, I attended the BLM Front Range Resource Advisory Council (RAC), of which I am a member representing historic and archaeological interests. The BLM and USFS have a vested interest in the Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site (PCMS) expansion because there may be BLM and Grassland lands involved.

At the BLM’s request, on the agenda was Tom Warren, Director of Environmental Compliance & Management. He gave an update on status of planning for the proposed (PCMS). The following is a summary:

- Department of Defense (DoD) has identified training lands and doctrine shortfalls identified since 1989.
- In DoD “waiver” of 2/14/07 training area shortfall = 400,000+ acres.
- The delicate balance is land use requirements for stewardship vs. defense training.
- The PCMS expansion is still in proposal stage. The funding is not secure.
- The area of proposed expansion has not been determined: 2.5 mil acres vs. 450,000 acres. The maps that were leaked to the media earlier were purely for early planning for alternatives.
- The earth, airspace, and bandwidth requirements are being reviewed by Sec. of Army.
- Public scoping meetings (Summer 2007) will identify and map the “revised area of interest” (AOI) will the basis for the EIS.
- There are other ongoing NEPA documents related to training and PCMS: Fort Carson Transformation EIS (under BRAC); Supplemental EIS for Striker Brigade.
- US Army Corps of Engineers is the real estate agent for Dept. of Army.
- There are or will be “interservice support agreements” between DoD/Dept. of Army and other federal agency for environmental studies and NEPA.
- Cooperating agency (i.e., co-preparers) status for other federal or state agencies for the EIS is to be decided. There may be Memorandums of Agreement with other federal agencies.
- If the expansion is not approved, it may mean that the avoidance areas (for cultural, biological, etc., resources) at the existing PCMS site will be utilized.
- Robin Wren (sp?) is the NEPA Coordinator for Fort Carson.

Mr. Warren was not able to state much more than that. If an interested party has requested to be on a mailing list for the EIS, he/she/they should received notification and updates for public scoping in summer 2007. The Executive Committee is trying to keep tabs on the public input process so that we can submit comments. Note: DoD released a preliminary map on or about June 7 showing approximately 460,000 acres of interest for expansion.

BLM Presentation at 2007 CCPA Meeting, March 30, 2007
Cheryl Harrison

Thanks to all the permittees for working with us through the tremendous workload for energy development. I want to briefly discuss several key initiatives in 2007

Energy Policy Act projects

West-Wide Energy Corridors: a planning effort by the Department of Energy, BLM, Forest Service, Department of Defense and the Department of Commerce to designate energy corridors on federal land across the West. BLM is the lead federal agency. Phase 1, which is preparing the Programmatic EIS, will continue this year. This phase only involves the identification of existing cultural resources to develop alternative corridor locations. Phase 2 will begin in 2008 involving the receipt of applications from energy companies to use the pre-designated corridors. This phase will involve the bulk of the Section 106 fieldwork.

Oil Shale and Tar Sands Leasing: a planning effort in CO, WY and UT led by the BLM to identify leasing areas on federal land. Phase 1, which will be completed this year, involves preparing the Programmatic EIS. This phase only involves the identification of existing cultural resources resulting in the completion of a Paleontological Overview, an Ethnohistoric Overview and a Cultural Resource Overview. This information will be analyzed with other resources to identify areas open to leasing. Phase 2 will begin in 2008 involving lease sales. Phase 3 will shortly follow involving applications for permits to remove the minerals. This phase will involve the bulk of the Section 106 fieldwork.

Energy Pilot Offices: an organizational effort in BLM to streamline the processing of Applications for Permit to Drill on federal land. Colorado has one pilot office in Glenwood Springs with a staff devoted to oil and gas permit processing in this field office area including both BLM and Forest Service lands. John Brogan is the archaeologist on staff. The Section 106 work will be processed through this office.

Resource Management Plans

An ongoing effort to revise the many outdated plans used by the field offices to allocate broad land uses. This effort is being used to synthesize cultural resource information generated over the last 20 years and use this analysis to update our Cultural Resource Overviews and better integrate with the State Historic Contexts. The Glenwood Springs and Kremmling field offices are undertaking this effort this year.

Cultural Resource Use Permits

Collections: This year we will be requesting that permittees deposit all collections generated from completed projects to the designated repositories. The State Office has almost completed the review of annual reports for permits since 1990 comparing the reported site collections with the associated collection deposit forms. Permittees will be notified of the sites that have no associated deposit forms and will be required to provide copies of the deposit forms, or deposit the collections by the end of this year.

Permit processing: Beginning this year all permits will be transmitted electronically in a pdf file.

Permit information: By the end of this year, the Colorado Handbook and all forms will be available on the Colorado BLM website.

E-Grants

The process for developing assistance agreements with external partners has changed. These agreements will be competitively based. Organizations must now electronically find and apply for competitive grant opportunities from all Federal grant-making agencies through Grants.gov (http://www.grants.gov/)

Cultural Resource Initiative “Enduring Legacy”
BLM is receiving $1 million of a proposed $3 million increase in its cultural resource budget this year in support of site enhancement and protection projects. Colorado is receiving $137,000 for work on Ancestral Puebloan sites in the Sand Canyon area of the Canyons of the Ancients NM, the Ute Ethnobotany project and a site stewardship program in the Uncompahgre Plateau, an outdoor education program at Canyon Pintado National Historic District, continued support for the Southwest Colorado site stewardship program, and an educational program for the Marsh Dinosaur Quarry.

Other Research Initiatives

Paleo-Indian Study: continued support for research at Barger Gulch and Middle Park, Gunnison Basin and South Park. Will also lend support for work on the Battlement Mesa site.

Wickiup Study: continued support for DARG’s work
- Yellow Creek Area – White River FO
  o Approx. 44 sites with approximately 144 structures
  o Focus on inter-site relationships
- Sand Wash Reconnaissance – Little Snake FO
  o Document wickiup sites in a proposed Open Travel Management Area
- Continued documentation of previously recorded wickiup sites – documenting aboriginal wooden structures – Glenwood Springs FO

Nominations: continued support for the nominations of the Barger Gulch Paleo Indian site and the McIntire Mansion near LaJara.

Personell:
- Glade Hadden – back at the Uncompahgre FO, Montrose
- Robyn Morris -- replaced Hal Kessling, Little Snake FO

About CCPA

The Colorado Council of Professional Archaeologists is a community of people concerned with the preservation, recovery, and interpretation of Colorado’s prehistoric and historic archaeological resources. Our members include federal and state agency archaeologists, private archaeological contractors, college professors, students, and amateur archaeologists. We welcome new members who are interested in furthering the CCPA’s goals.
