President's Corner

Kristin Kuckelman

Fall colors blaze across the landscape, and snow is already dusting the peaks of the La Platas here in the southwestern corner of Colorado. May this beautiful autumn continue awhile!

The Executive Committee (EC) has been busy since the summer newsletter appeared on your computer screens. This year, we held our summer EC meeting on September 12 in the historic Park County Courthouse in Fairplay. Please refer to meeting notes provided by our secretary Cody Anderson elsewhere in this newsletter for the content of that meeting. On that same day, the meeting attendees also toured a bank building in Fairplay with Historic Preservation Director of Park County Linda Balough. Linda solicited our opinion on the suitability of that building for conversion to an archaeological museum and curation facility. EC members agreed that the building has potential as well as a great location. Good luck to Linda in raising the funding needed for this worthwhile project that would help relieve Colorado's crunch for curation space.

As decided in the recent EC meeting, we'll soon be adding a CCPA "Fellows" page to our website to honor these individuals who have contributed so much to archaeology in Colorado. Our current Fellows comprise Adrienne Anderson, David Breternitz, Frank Eddy, and Elizabeth Ann Morris. We're in the process of gathering photos and bios from these folks, and CCPA's Web Page Editor Mary Sullivan will use these materials to create the new web page in the near future. A few photos and bios have already trickled in, and I was relieved to see that Dave was not wearing his Miss Piggy hat in the photo he submitted! This page is sure to be an interesting addition to our website . . .

Thanks to Board Member Michelle Slaughter, CCPA will also soon have its own Facebook page. We hope that this (relatively) new type of electronic exposure will help generate interest in our organization, and in professional archaeology in general, among a wider audience across the state.

Dr. Claudia Berry of the Dominguez Archaeological Research Group, Inc. (DARG) requested a letter from the CCPA in support of a grant proposal to the Colorado State Historical Fund. The requested money would fund the continued compilation of radiocarbon dates from published sources as well as gray literature archived in facilities around the state. The EC voted in favor of providing a letter of support on behalf of the CCPA to help Dr. Berry to continue this important work, and I was pleased to supply such a letter.

The CCPA donated $250 to The Archaeology Channel and $1300 to the Crow Canyon Scholarship Fund. TAC is run by a nonprofit research and education institute dedicated to bringing the benefits of archaeology to a wide constituency. The Crow Canyon Archaeological Center is a not-for-profit research and education institution and licensed camp, the mission of which is to advance knowledge of the human experience through archaeological research, education programs, and collaboration with American Indians. The scholarship this year funded the participation of a local high school student of Navajo heritage, Kylie Dennison, in a one-week high school archaeology camp in July. Kylie and her parents expressed their deep appreciation for this opportunity.

On September 21, four EC members (Erik Gantt, Michelle Slaughter, Greg Wolff, and I) traveled to the Piñon Canyon Maneuver Site (PCMS) northeast of Trinidad to meet with OAHP Section 106 Compliance Coordinator Shina duVall and PCMS personnel to tour sites and discuss our concerns about the protection and welfare of historic and prehistoric sites on this land. My notes from this meeting are included elsewhere in this newsletter.

Lucy Bambrey is soliciting suggestions for the 2010 slate of officers. If you or someone you know would represent CCPA well as president, treasurer, or board member, please let Lucy know. And everyone, please pay your dues!

Plans for our 2010 annual meeting in Montrose on March 25–28 are underway; this event is being sponsored and planned by Alpine Archaeological Consultants. A tentative schedule is contained in this newsletter. It isn't too early to ponder presentation topics!

Enjoy your holidays, and safe travels—

Kristin

CCPA Executive Committee Visits the PCMS

Kristin Kuckelman

As I stated in the July newsletter, the immediate threat of expansion of the PCMS has subsided, but in April, Section 106 consultation was initiated on a proposed IED (Improvised Explosive Device) Village Lanes at the PCMS to train soldiers in simulated Iraq and Afghan villages. CCPA is an official consulting party for the Section 106 process at the PCMS. In response to the letter initiating the Section 106 process, the CCPA EC crafted two different letters expressing our concerns for the welfare and preservation of sites on the PCMS—one to Chief, Environmental Division, Directorate of Public Works at Fort Carson Mr. Carlos Rivero-deAguilar, and another to Major General Mark Graham, commanding general of Fort Carson. These letters were met with a vague reassurance from Fort Carson Garrison Commander Colonel Robert F. McLaughlin that there is no threat to the historic properties in their care, and we were encouraged to meet with PCMS cultural resources personnel so that they could address our specific concerns.

On September 21, CCPA Executive Committee representatives Kristin Kuckelman (President), Erik Gantt (President Elect), Michelle Slaughter (Board Member), and Greg Wolff (Board Member) traveled to the PCMS northeast of Trinidad to meet with OAHF Section 106 Compliance Coordinator Shina duVall and Pamela Cowen Miller (Cultural Resources Program Manager, Fort Carson), Mark Owens (Lead Archaeologist, Fort Carson), Pam Owens (Historian, Fort Carson), and Roger Walkenhorst (Archaeologist, Fort Carson). The purpose of this meeting was to view sites and to discuss our concerns about the protection and preservation of historic and prehistoric sites on the PCMS. My abridged notes from the meeting are provided below.

We visited the Barnes Site, Cross Ranch, Rock Crossing Traditional Cultural Property (TCP), Sharp's Ranch, Mincic Ranch, Big Canyon/Crowder Ranch, Brown's Sheep Camp, and 5LA2348 (historic corral). Increasingly heavy rain turning to snow prevented visiting additional sites; we returned to the cantonment in mid-afternoon and continued discussions indoors.

We were informed that the Army wants to use the historic ranch houses at Red Rocks, Sharp's, Biernacki, and Big Canyon/Crowder ranches for training maneuvers and claims that these activities would have no adverse effects on the buildings. Pam Miller disagrees with that assessment and is resisting this development. We also gathered the following additional information:

(1) Pam is unsure of the implications of the September 8, 2009 federal court ruling overturning the 2007 Environmental Impact Statement associated with proposed increased intensity and duration of training at the PCMS.

(2) Regarding the current plan for Section 106 compliance at the PCMS, Pam stated that they have decided on a Programmatic Agreement (PA) rather than an Army Alternate Procedures (AAP) approach. This was decided as a result of feedback from the consulting tribes and the SHPO. Pam had no objection to the shift to a PA, and said the procedures achieve the same end by different routes.

(3) Pam stated that the discrepancies between site assessments as shown in the IED Village Lanes proposal vs. those in COMPASS probably result from a backlog of "110" forms that have not been entered into COMPASS yet, and Shina concurred that her office has received many forms that have not yet been entered into the COMPASS database.

(4) Some sites listed on Enclosure 5 of the Village Lanes proposal show "report forthcoming" for the survey reference. We were informed that reports have not been written because the survey has not been completed.

(5) When asked about post-activity condition assessment of sites on the PCMS, Pam responded that if there is damage or impact after a maneuver, they complete and submit an OAHP Re-evaluation Form.

(6) Pam stated that a report on tribal consultations, TCPs, and sacred sites came out this year.

(7) Pam stated that tension between training folks and the environmental staff at Fort Carson has decreased recently with the change in personnel at the top (new Fort Carson Commanding General Major General Perkins and new Garrison Commander Colonel Robert McLaughlin).

(8) Shina stated that she agrees with PCMS eligibility assessments.

(9) Training at the PCMS is scheduled to increase in frequency in the near future.

(10) Some new survey is conducted every year at the PCMS. At present, 81 percent of the current PCMS (which covers 329,000 acres) has been surveyed; most of the remaining acreage is in canyon settings.

If you would like to view the unabridged version of these notes, please email me. This meeting was informative; we will continue to monitor activity at the PCMS and strive to ensure the preservation of these cultural resources.

CCPA Executive Committee Meeting Minutes

Cody Anderson

September 12, 2009 – Old Park County Courthouse, Fairplay

Meeting called to order at 1:27 pm

Secretary notes:

A motion for approving the last minutes of the executive committee meeting in Alamosa were approved by Greg Wolff and seconded by Erik Gantt.

Treasurer's report:

The CCPA treasurer reported the profit and loss comparisons of January 1 through September 12 of 2008 and 2009. During this time the total income increased 17% and total expenses are also up 59%. The increase is mainly accounted for by the 2009 reprints of the prehistoric context books. The CCPA currently has a net income of approximately $2,600 in the account. The balance sheet shows that the total liabilities and equity of the CCPA is more than $35,000. The 2010 conference in Montrose was also discussed in regards to the budget for comparing the 2008 to 2009 annual conferences. It was acknowledged that the 2010 annual conference should be as cost effective as possible and within similar expenditure as the past conference in Alamosa.

Membership subcommittee report:

Jon Horn reported that membership renewal has gone down somewhat. There are 163 CCPA members, including the four Fellows, 59 people still have not renewed their membership in 2008 and 11 people have not paid since 2007. If everyone renewed their membership there would be 233 members. Of the 163 current members, there are nine student voting members, 10 associate student members, 13 associate members, and 131 voting members.

A CCPA Facebook website page was recommended in order to acquire more involvement in membership. Facebook is a social network tool that has potential for connecting archaeologists and other interested parties to real time feedback about the CCPA. Such a page can be used as an open forum for archaeologists to display current projects and discuss current issues. Facebook is free, easy to set up, and a useful tool for generating interest about the CCPA. A movement was made for Michelle Slaughter to create a CCPA Facebook page. Erik Gantt motioned for a Facebook page and a second motion was made by Steve Dominguez; a call for vote was made and all were in favor.

Publications subcommittee report:

Anne McKibbin addressed the executive committee via e-mail on 9/22/09. She is planning to have a CCPA book sale at the Rocky Mountain Archaeological Conference (RMAC). She is also in discussion with the Colorado Archaeological Society (CAS) about whether they are going to want to sell context materials.

There is also a continued effort to get grant money to produce an updated version of the prehistoric contexts.

Ethics subcommittee report:

There were no official ethics complaints filed from April 2009 to September 11, 2009.

Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site (PCMS):

The judge reviewing the draft of the Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) of the PCMS expansion project recently found the report to be insufficient and inadequate.

The Shovelbums website recently had a call for field technicians by ICI out of Washington D.C. Concerns were raised at the executive meeting about the level of experience that ICI requested in the Shovelbums advertisement. They did not ask for qualified archaeologists experienced in Colorado or western North American and they do not suggest that applicants need to meet the Secretary of Interior standards. Experience and quality control for the amount of work that is required may be an issue that will be addressed during the upcoming meeting at PCMS on September 21, 2009. Fort Carson's Cultural Resource Department has recently provided a large amount of documents of their work over the past several years to the Colorado State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO).

Old Park County Courthouse, Fairplay, CO.

The CCPA executive committee will be visiting the PCMS on September 21, 2009. They will tour some of the sites on the maneuver grounds and discuss current preservation issues with cultural resource management and staff of Fort Carson.

Newsletter update:

The next quarter deadline for submittals and photos is in October; materials can be sent to Greg Williams.

E-mail listserve/legislative alerts:

Listserve/legislative alerts were previously considered by the executive committee and were thought to be useful for providing timely information (i.e., legislative activity, etc.) to CCPA members via e-mail instead of waiting for details to appear in the newsletter. Problems were stipulated in simple mass e-mails to the members and the internet provider(s), which may not allow a mass e-mail. Such a large mass of e-mails may result in the internet provider to regard them as spam, or they could get lost, etc. Special notices can get out to members but it can take some time. A true listserver would require hiring an independent company to allow any member on the listserver to send a message to the entire group and then any member could respond to the entire group. Information still needs to be gathered as to whether or not it is cost effective for the CCPA to have a controlled internal system for an actual listserver.

Website update:

A motion was made by Erik Gantt to list the four current Fellows on the CCPA website. The motion was seconded by Greg Wolff. All executive members voted in favor of the motion.

Scholarships and donations:

Funds for the Ward Weekly Scholarship ($750), Crow Canyon Scholarship ($1,300), and Archaeology Channel membership ($250) will continue.

Archives project:

The previous secretary, Sean Larmore, has submitted his archives to the Denver Public Library. The current secretary requests that all official documents of the CCPA to be submitted to the current secretary, Cody Anderson.

CAS collaboration:

President Kristin Kuckelman attended the CAS board meeting in Durango and encouraged additional participation and collaboration between the CCPA and CAS organizations. Some executive members are scheduling to attend the October CAS board meeting in Pueblo.

2010 officers' slate:

The CCPA executive committee is currently looking to fill office seats for the 2010 slate. Interested parties are welcome to inquire with Lucy Bambrey.

2010 annual meeting in Montrose:

A draft of the 2010 annual meeting in Montrose was reviewed. Banquette dining was considered and it was generally thought that attendance may be higher and costs may be cheaper if a buffet was selected, instead of a served meal. Fund-raising events should also be considered for both scholarships and county historic funds.

Other:

Dr. Claudia Berry of the Dominguez Archaeological Research Group, Inc. is requesting a letter of support from the CCPA to the director of the State Historic Funds. She is currently going through repositories and collecting all reported radiocarbon dates from published sources and gray literature in Colorado.

Concerns were raised by executive committee members about the Omaha District U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (Army Corps) limited influence of their area of potential effect (APE). Apparently several Army Corps projects are not considering the entire impact corridor and are currently only concerned within the jurisdiction of waterways and wetlands that are stipulated in Appendix C regulations used by the Army Corps. The ACHP website further discusses this issue. Lucy Bambrey motioned to write a letter to the Advisory Council of Historic Preservation (ACHP) regarding the restricted APE and also send a copy of the letter to the Omaha Army Corps and Colorado SHPO. The motion was approved.

Action items:

Treasurer: A determination of how much money the CCPA made when comparing the annual conferences from 2008 to 2009 has been requested for the treasurer, Chris Bevilacqua.

Membership: Michelle Slaughter has volunteered to create a CCPA Facebook page.

Listservers: Greg Williams will try to determine the cost is for setting up a CCPA listservers.

Website: It was determined that the CCPA Fellows be placed on the website, perhaps with a picture and biography (Mary Sullivan).

President: A letter of support needs to be written to the State Historic Funds director in regard to Claudia Berry's continued work of inventorying radiocarbon dates from archaeological sites.

President-elect: It was determined that Erik Gantt would write a letter of concern to the ACHP in regards to the Army Corps of Engineers limited APE.

Meeting adjourned at 4:15 pm

New from the University Press of Colorado

Greg Williams

The University Press of Colorado periodically publishes books relevant to archaeology. For more information go to www.upcolorado.com or call 720-406-8849.

The End of Time. The Maya Mystery of 2012. By Anthony Aveni. 204 pages, 5.5 x 8.5, $19.95 softcover. "In The End of Time, award-winning astronomer and Maya researcher Anthony Aveni explores these theories (concerning prophecies, theories, and predictions that this date marks the end of the world), explains their origins, and measures them objectively against evidence unearthed by Maya archaeologists, iconographers, and epigraphers." Aveni contrasts the concept of "linear time" with that of "cyclical time" and addresses the phenomenon of "millennialism." Aveni is the Russell Colgate Distinguished University Professor of Astronomy, Anthropology, and Native American Studies at Colgate University.

CCPA Listserver in the Making

Greg Williams

A members-only listserv for CCPA is currently being tested with the members of the Executive Committee. If it meets expectations it will be expanded to include the full membership. When this happens you will receive an email with the details and participation instructions. If you have any questions please contact Greg Williams (see page 13 for phone and email). For those unfamiliar with a listserv it allows any participating member to communicate instantly by email with ALL of the other members of the listserv by sending just one email to a special address. This is excellent for general inquiries and special alerts. Members may then respond to the entire listserv or send a private email to the person who generated the initial posting.
