Editor's Corner

Summertime, and the livin' is easy... Although the newsletter deadline was May 31, I have been somewhat lax in pushing the press-time on this issue of the newsletter. For those of you who wait with baited breath until this document gets into your hands. I apologize. Thanks go to those who articles for contributed this newsletter; for the rest of you, the next deadline is October 31. I look forward to having a lot of reports about field work in the next issue-so start writing!!!

Also, in the November newsletter, I would like to compile an updated membership list. So...for all of you who have moved, changed phone numbers, added FAX numbers, e-mail numbers, etc., since the last list went out in November, 1994, PLEASE FILL ME IN ON ALL PERTINENT INFO!!! Otherwise, it will be wrong, or omitted, etc., and I am not taking responsibility for incorrect information. Please check your most recent copy of the membership list as soon as possible, so I can keep everyone happy.

Until the fall, Kae McDonald

President's Corner

-My first three months as CCPA president have been fairly quiet ones. CCPA has entered the realm of grant administration, sponsoring Angela Rayne's Colorado Absolute Dating Project (CRADDLE) and Joan Mathien's mini-grant for development of an anti-vandalism brochure.

At the first meeting of the new CCPA executive committee (see list) at the annual meeting in March, board members agreed that it was important for CCPA to adopt guidelines for grant applications that involve the organization. We are studying the Colorado Archaeological Society and Society for American Archaeology guidelines for examples of ways other organizations deal with grants. Following up on unfinished business from the annual meeting, a committee is looking at possible revisions to the CCPA Code of Ethics to deal with dissemination of research results to descendants of the sites under study.

We are also looking into setting up a CCPA Web page on the Internet. These committees will be making reports at the CCPA executive committee meeting at the Hotel Colorado on July 13. We welcome your ideas and suggestions.

I urge everyone to keep abreast of what Congress is up to. Their attempts cripple to historic preservation legislation by slashing budgets and attacks on the Advisory Council for Historic Preservation continue, often with little advance warning. Representative David Skaggs has been a strong voice for historic preservation; it is regrettable that many of Colorado's other congressmen are working against us. My "own" representative. Scott McInnis. informs me of the need to cut money historic preservation because, "If we alter the way the Federal Government does its business, we can leave our children with a bright future and a strong_country." Evidently saving our culture heritage does not enter into Representative McInnis' vision of a bright future for our children. I encourage all of you with e-mail to your addresses forward to me (alparch@rmi.net) so that Ĩ can quickly disseminate any information requiring a quick response that comes to my attention in between these quarterly CCPA newsletters.

I look forward to being your president this year. Let's keep in touch. Please call/FAX/write/e-mail me -- or any of the other executive committee members -- with your ideas, problems, suggestions, complaints -or just to chat! Have a great summer/field season.

Susan Chandler

LOST BOX!

A box containing Jeff Eighmy's president's files, CCPA stationery, etc. was misplaced at the annual meeting at the Anasazi Heritage Center in March. Did anyone end up with it mixed in with their boxes of books or files? If so, please forward it Susan Chandler. Thanks!

1997 ANNUAL MEETING

The Golden City of Historic Preservation Board, in conjunction with Centennial Archaeology and the Colorado Department of Transportation. has offered to sponsor the Colorado Council of Professional Archaeologist's annual meeting on March 14-15, 1997. Golden, "the cultural hub of Colorado and where the west still lives, has all the facilities necessary for the meetings in addition to a nightlife second only to Las Vegas." Friday's meeting would include the CCPA business meeting, contributed papers, and a tour of the Magic Mountain site. one mile south of Golden. Friday night's banquet would feature a trivia bowl. On Saturday, a proposed symposium entitled "The Archaeology Colorado's Waterways" of would explore the history of archaeology along the South Platte, Arkansas, Rio Grand. Dolores. Colorado/Gunnison. and White/Yampa Rivers. current. research along those rivers. and directions for future research along those rivers. Please contact Meg Van Ness if you have any suggestions or comments regarding the meeting.

SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE REFINES CRITERIA

Many of the applications the Ward F. Weakly Memorial Fund Scholarship Committee receives are to support attendance at a professional meeting for the purpose of presenting a paper aspect of on some Colorado archeology. And, most of these are received immediately prior to the professional meeting involved. Presenting a paper at a professional meeting was voted on and approved as an appropriate scholarship project by the Colorado Council of Professional Archaeologists' (CCPA) membership at the 1990 Cortez annual meeting. The scholarship committee believes that this activity is important for growth and professional student development.

However, because of the low dollar amount in the Memorial Fund, there is need to closely scrutinize each application to ensure the most deserving applicants are awarded. Therefore, the scholarship committee is proposing that in addition to the general application, each applicant for attendance at a professional meeting also provide a copy of his/her paper along with the application form. Currently, the committee requests, but does not always receive, a copy of the final paper after presentation for inclusion in CCPA's archives along with the records of the Ward F. Weakly Memorial Fund.

The scholarship committee also is proposing that priority be given to participation in state/regional professional meetings and workshops over large, national meetings.

Anticipatory to discussion and approval by the membership at the next annual meeting, the committee WILL REQUIRE submittal of the proposed paper along with the general application at the next scholarship deadlines - October 1, 1996 and March 1, 1997.

WARD WEAKLY BOOKSALE SUCCESS; THREE SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

Thanks to book contributions from many members and a generous book donation by Charles Weeth, Janet Weeth's father, the Ward F. Weakly Memorial Fund Used Book Sale grossed slightly more than $600 at CCPA's 1996 annual meeting. This enabled CCPA to award three more scholarships, making a total of $4879,75 the organization has provided to students studying Colorado archeology.

During the spring review period, four applications for scholarships were evaluated. Awards were given to Carey Southwell, Christopher Pierce, and Caryn Berg to help support their participation in the 1996 Society for American Archeology Annual meeting. Unfortunately, because there is a shortage of money in the Ward F. Weakly Fund, CCPA was able to award only $300.00 to each applicant - not the entire amount that was requested. An additional application for general tuition was denied because this type of support does not meet the purpose for which the scholarship was established.

Ms. Southwell presented her University of Colorado - Denver Honors Thesis, "Colorado Game Drive Systems: A Comparative Analysis, at the SAA New Orleans Meeting. This study examined the differences among mountain, foothills, and plains game drive systems and looked at the similarities found within each region. Ms. Berg's paper examined flaked stone tool production and use at a series of Archaic sites in southwestern Colorado. This study was the initial phase of her doctoral research at the University of Colorado - Boulder. Mr. Pierce, University of Washington, presented his doctoral research on Mesa Verde tradition ceramic utility wares. which is being carried out through the Crow Canyon Archeological Center.

The next deadline for scholarship applications is October 1, 1996.

MEMBERSHIP DUES

At the Executive Committee Meeting in March. 1996, it was decided that, rather than require the back-payment of past years' dues to reinstate members, the Board thought that a letter requesting reinstatement would suffice. If you find yourself, or know of someone else who is, no longer a member of CCPA because of non-payment of dues, please contact a member of the Executive Committee for further information. FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

An Update on ACRA

The American Cultural Resources Association (ACRA) is an association of private consulting firms with the mission to promote the professional, ethical and business practices of the cultural resources industry, including all of its affiliated disciplines, for the benefit of the resources, the public, and the members of the association. ACRA has been around for a little over a year now, a very active year. But unless you are a member and have e-mail (and have sent us your email address) you may not be aware of some of the things we have been up to.

Since we incorporated last March, we have gained over 115 corporate members and 25 associates. We have spent most of our time and money on lobbying, our national conference and management (mailings, internet, finances, etc.). You might well ask, what has ACRA actually done that benefits me or cultural resources consulting. Here are a few of the highlights.

ACRA successfully helped preserve the Advisory Council in 1995 by sending out letters to members of Congress, helping get our compatriot organizations (Preservation Action, SAA, SHA, NCPH, etc.) to join in the fight, and getting solid information to our members and thousands of others via the Internet that they could rely on, and respond to, in a timely fashion. We have sent representatives to Capitol Hill to testify for the first time on behalf of private consultants for the Advisory Council and Section 106.

ACRA has published a monthly newsletter that has up-to-date information on major issues of concern to cultural resource consultants and our members. We set up and are coordinating several committees on topics of concern to our members including labor relations, OSHA, membership and fund raising, academic education and training, competitive practices, and best practices. The latter committee came about from a meeting last October with various federal agencies, including the National Conference of State Historic Preservation Officers (NCSHPO) who came up with the idea of the best practices committee, the National Park Service, and the Forest Service. We are now recognized as a national organization by other preservation organizations and by federal agencies. We have had meetings with or sent representatives to meetings of federal and SHPO staffs in Washington D.C. and elsewhere to represent for the first time the consultants' point of view on federal regulations and procurement. These included meetings with the President's Advisory Council (spring 1995), the staffs of 23 states' Historic Preservation Officers and the Keeper of the National Register (November 1995), the joint federal and SAA/SHA Reinventing Archaeology conference (winter 1996), etc.

This is the first time many of these agencies and staffs have met with representatives of the cultural resources industry and discussed mutual problems and concerns. We have also been asked to send speakers to state professional organizations and to national conferences of other organizations.

We have held three board meetings, one Atlanta in, one in Washington and one in Baltimore. Our next board meeting is scheduled for Sacramento before our second national conference on November 1-3, 1996. These are open meetings, and members are encouraged to attend. If you are not a member we encourage you to join and come to our meetings.

We maintain a popular and successful internet mailing list, ACRA-L, with over 250 subscribers that is being quoted and referred to by others in academia, and in federal and state agencies. Incidentally, if you have had trouble signing on in the past, please try again. We have had some snafus with approvals that have now been corrected.

We maintain a content oriented web site that is receiving as many as 1,200 hits a week, and several requests a day for more information about ACRA or problems confronting the cultural resources industry. Our web site provides links to downloadable information on federal laws, federal procurement offices, a list of our members, other information of interest to our members, and links to other organizations.

We have mailed out thousands of brochures and other mailings soliciting support and providing information. We have answered countless telephone calls for help and for more information about ACRA and the issues we are addressing. We have sent out a list of our members and ethics statement to all the SHPOs, informing them that there is a group of consultants that supports ethical behavior and sound business practices. We have mailed out press releases, such as this one, and information to various national and regional CRM related newsletters and journals about ACRA and the Advisory Council problem.

We have hired a lawyer, Maurice Baskin, through a special fund to help address the Department of Labor wage determination issue, and the labor relations committee held a meeting in Washington with him and three federal agencies to discuss the issue this winter. This was followed by meetings with our board of directors in Baltimore and with federal agency cultural resource staff at the Society for American Archaeology conference in New Orleans to discuss this issue. We are supporting the U.S. Forest Service's appeal of the archaeological field technician job description. This is important for everyone seeking federal contracts, whether or not they are archaeologists, because cultural resources contracts also contain history and historic preservation research.

Where do we go from here? Not everything has been perfect or gone smoothly. We need more members to help pay for our lobbying and information gathering services. We also need more members to have more clout with Congress, federal agencies and others. If you would like to join, call Tom Wheaton, our executive director at 770 498 4155 or David Ketz, our membership chairman, at 612 290 0977, or any of our board members.

By now you have probably heard that the United Archaeological Field Technicians (UAFT) is making a concerted effort to force companies into financial difficulties by appealing 70 federal contracts to the Department of Labor over the wage determination issue. We would like to advise you to be careful bidding on any federal project requiring archaeological technicians (no matter what term is actually used, no matter if the contract does not mention the Service Contract Act, no matter if there are no other wage determinations attached). Ask the contracting officer if the agency has submitted an SF98 to determine the need for wage determinations, and if they have not done so, ask them to do so. If they have not, this means they do not really know if they have to use the #29020, archaeological technician, job description or not.

As cultural resource consultants, we have other problems as well. Even though Rep. Hanson's subcommittee will pass along the National Historic Preservation Act reauthorization to the full committee, it has been badly wounded. The reauthorization appears to be more of an attempt to gut the law over the next two years, than to support preservation. We need to keep the pressure on, and with the help of CEHP Incorporated we will keep on top of things. As part of this effort, ACRA recently approved an agreement with CEHP Incorporated to supply ACRA corporate members with an online newsletter. This is in addition to Internet alerts and ACRA-L.

To get in touch with ACRA, find out who we are, or leave us a note, please visit our web site at: http://www.mindspring.com/~wheaton/ACRA.html. Please remember that the web is case sensitive.

MINUTES OF ANNUAL MEETING OF THE COLORADO COUNCIL OF PROFESSIONAL ARCHAEOLOGISTS

MARCH 15, 1996

ANASAZI HERITAGE CENTER DOLORES, COLORADO

The minutes of the executive committee meeting as written and published in the last newsletter were unanimously approved by the membership.

President's report: Jeff announced that the executive committee agreed to lend its support to two State Historic Preservation Fund proposals. These include the Colorado absolute dating project as proposed by Angela Rayne (refer to last newsletter) and the development of an inter-governmental, anti-vandalism, public education brochure. Once developed, CCPA has agreed to distribute the brochures around the state of Colorado.

During his term, Jeff informed us that he organized a letter-writing campaign to support the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation whose existence was threatened this last legislative session. Jeff also attended a breakfast sponsored by Colorado Preservation Incorporated (CPI), a lobbying organization active at the state level in the preservation of historic resources. Jeff thanked Bob Brunswig for organizing this year's annual meeting. Jeff also thanked Janet Weeth for making local arrangements. Thanks go, too, to the Anasazi Heritage Center for providing meeting facilities and to Crow Canyon who sponsored this year's banquet.

Treasurer's report: Jeanne Mobley-Tanaka reported that the CCPA General Fund balance as of this meeting is $3,789.92. Ward Weakly Fund contains $1,245.53. This makes a total balance of $5,034.72. Revenues for this fiscal year have been $7,575.69. Expenditures for the general fund: $8,565.02. The publication of the CCPA Occasional Papers No. 2 accounts for the level of expenditures. Though the publication came out last fiscal year, it was billed this year.

The Ward Weakly Fund revenues have been $503.62. Expenditures: $1,503.75. Expenditures exceeded revenues because no book sale was held at last year's meeting (refer to the annual report for the Ward Weakly fund in this newsletter).

General Fund breakdown is as follows:

Revenue:

$2,482.06	-	a carry-over from last year's meeting rolled into this fiscal year;
1,542.95	-	this year's meeting registrations;
1,355.00	-	dues;
2,103.00	-	book sales, mostly Paper No. 2;
92.68	-	interest income.

Expenditures:

$1,150.31	-	newsletter distribution;
294.43	-	meeting costs;
80.52	-	postage;

61.28	-	telephone charges;
6,680.71	Ī	publications: $500. to support the Archaeological Awareness Week poster and Paper No. 2. (In this first year of sales, CCPA has recovered about 50% of publication costs. Thanks to Bob Brunswig and Kae McDonald for taking the publication to professional meetings.)

Ward Weekly Fund breakdown:

Revenue:

$ 445.00	-	dues;
15.00	-	donation;
43.62	-	interest income.

Expenditures:

$1,503.75 - scholarships

Membership is as follows: Currently, CCPA has 144 voting members; 20 associate members; three fellows; and one American Indian member.

Membership Committee report (refer to full report in this newsletter): Jeannie reported for Jane Anderson. Application for membership reviewed twice for 1995 and 1996. Two associate members, four voting members, and one American Indian member were approved. These include Richard Madole and Angela Rayne as associate; Don Fiero, Ted Hoefer, Mark Mitchell, and Mary Painter as voting; and Leigh Jenkins as the American Indian voting member. One complete application for voting was received in March; three incomplete applications now on file including one membership upgrade request. Twentynine individuals have requested application forms since 1992; most requests have occurred in 1995 and 1996. Four American Indians have expressed an interest in joining CCPA as American Indian voting members. Jennie Anderson has written each describing the necessary information to process applications. Jennie has agreed to serve on the Membership Committee for 1996-1997. She will ask the other two members on the Committee if they wish to serve this next year. Membership application forms available at the meeting through Jeannie Mobley-Tanaka, along with the current by-laws.

Ward Weakly Scholarship Fund report (refer to full report in this newsletter): Adrienne Anderson reported that the Committee awarded three scholarships for a total of eleven throughout the four-year existence of this Fund for a total of almost $4,000.00. Last year's awardees were Mark Mitchell, Stephen Sherman, and Angela Rayne. Currently, four applications are under review. Though these requests have been evaluated, decisions depend upon the funds that will be obtained from this year's book sale. One request for lodging support was rejected for Japanese scientists' participation in a ground penetration radar conference. A number of requests for information were responded to. Flyers describing the Fund were updated. Regarding this year's book sale, thanks go to Janet Weeth's father for his generous contribution of books. An auction will occur after lunch to auction off some rare and prized books/journals. Thanks go to all of the membership for their contributions and purchases this year. The purpose of the sale and the Ward Weakly Fund is to help students.

Newsletter Information: Kae McDonald reported that the next deadline is June 1st. Jeff thanked Kae for the excellent job she has been doing in the publication of the CCPA newsletter. She has agreed to continue in this capacity for one more year.

Advisory Committee of the State Archaeologist: Kevin Black reported that this is a standing committee of the Colorado Archaeological Society (CAS). The current president of CCPA is always a member. The committee meets quarterly. Last meeting held in January. The meetings have been limited to a report from each chapter on their activities. However, the committee does exist for the purpose of transmitting information to the State Archaeologist (Susan Collins). The next meeting will be held April 20th in Durango. Each year a number of professional archaeologists are asked to serve on this committee in addition to the dedicated CCPA position. If any of the CCPA membership has concerns to pass on to the state archaeologist, be aware that the committee exists for that purpose.

Ethics Committee report: Jeff reported that no concerns have been expressed. Consequently, the committee has remained inactive.

Election results: The new executive committee officers are as follows:

President -	Bob Brunswig
Treasurer -	Bridget Ambler
Directors -	Phil Duke
	Dan Jepson
Secretary -	Rosemary Sucec
American Indian Representative -	Leigh Jenkins (Director of the Cultural
•	Preservation Office, Hopi Tribe)

Kevin thanks all of those who agreed to run on the ballot. It's a real service to the organization.

Financial review: Jeff asked Steve Clouse and Meg Van Ness to look at the CCPA financial records, a required responsibility. Meg reported that the records are in order.

Rocky Mountain Conference Monograph: Mike Metcalf reminded membership that CCPA voted to donate some funds for the publication of the conference proceedings. It's looking like the journal will be out in September or October. Jeff said the executive committee will take the issue up at either this or the summer's board meeting.

Proposed Change to the Code of Ethics: Rosemary Succe read the proposed change (see last newsletter). Says it would require archaeologists to disseminate a copy of their reports to the likely affiliated tribe where material evidence exits that they may be associated with that site. Reasons expressed for making the proposed change: it's in keeping with the organizational goal passed last year which calls for the promotion of open communication and cooperation between archaeologists and the living descendants of groups subject to archaeological research in Colorado. Additionally, it is one of the items on the wish list provided to CCPA by Roger Echohawk two years ago. Some tribes are wanting to reconstruct their past in the manner that archaeologists want to reconstruct the past of humankind. Rosemary circulated a list of tribes likely affiliated with Colorado resources (see enclosed). The list is a compilation of information from the Colorado Commission on Indian Affairs and information from the National Park Service (NPS).

A discussion ensued in which the following issues were raised: the duplication of reports is costprohibitive for smaller or private contractors; the discomfort archaeologists feel in making determinations of cultural affiliation; the potential that tribes would disagree as to who should receive a report; in some cases, numerous copies of reports would need to be sent out; a need exists for an evaluation of the legal ramifications of such an amendment; the obligations to non-Indian groups to provide copies of reports; an increase in the number of reports if DNA evidence demonstrates a genetic relationship between contemporary tribes and Paleoindian and Archaic peoples; providing reports at the end of the project may result in unnecessary delays and costs; and reports may be burdensome and not useful.

Some useful suggestions were made: send a letter of notification in lieu of reports; provide an abstract in lieu of reports; provide electronic copies; the code of ethics is not legally binding, but a guideline for preferred behavior; SHPO to send a list of reports to tribes on an annual basis; and focus upon consultation (a legal requirement for federal undertakings) at the beginning of a project.

The decision of the membership by vote was to send the issue to the executive committee for further discussion. The proposed amendment should not be dropped, but evaluated to address the concerns expressed.

Sub-committee report on updating the contexts: Carol Gleichman briefly summarized some of the options for updating the regional contexts that were completed in 1984 and haven't been revised since. Carol reminded us that it was SHPO that originally took the initiative to get the contexts published. If they are to be updates, SHPO needs to be involved. The sub-committee of Carol, Susan Chandler, and Rosemary Succe solicited the input of state archaeologist, Susan Collins. In the November newsletter, a survey was conducted to determine the preference of the membership; only twelve people responded. Hardly a representative sample from which to receive guidance. The sub-committee decided that it needed input from the membership before making any decisions.

The options include (1) update the regional contexts; or (2) do multiple property nominations (MPN) in lieu of regional updates (MPN's provide specific information about types of sites and the criteria to look for to determine National Register eligibility; also provides pertinent research questions); or (3) do nothing. Options for accomplishing the task were also discussed. CCPA can assume full responsibility; SHPO can do it; or we can form a partnership. For a discussion of these options, see handout attached. What seems reasonable is a partnership with SHPO. If SHPO were to assist, they have the infrastructure in place to finance and administer contracts. What are the ways CCPA can actively work with SHPO?

A brief discussion by the membership raised some issues: The format should be more than a paper venue; it should be interactive. Contexts have value in that they are a written document to be used as criteria for site eligibility; the professional judgement of archaeologists is not always perceived as sufficient by contractors. And, one member perceived that interacting with colleagues about research issues is sufficient; we know who to contact when necessary - or can find out.

There was not sufficient time or information to resolve the issue at the annual membership meeting. The executive committee will continue to explore it.

GREY LITERATURE ACCESSIBILITY

Bill Arbogast reviewed his investigation. He spoke with representatives from SHPO and determined that accessibility has improved over the past couple of years. Bill outlined this position in the last newsletter and asked for membership input, but received no response. However, he can't assume the problem is solved. He queried the membership to determine if the problem is still there.

Discussion: Susan Collins mentioned that every BLM district office has on-line, direct access to OHAP database. Can the OHAP data base be available to every contractor via modem? Meg Van Ness says that by the end of the year, every library in the state will be on-line. Legal locations will be omitted from the data base. Focus needs to be placed on educating our community about the easy access to the data. Meg plans to do this once the system is up and running. Bill has volunteered to make sure that info gets published in the newsletter. A concern was expressed that reports earlier than 1988 are difficult to access. Additional discussion ensued about CCPA developing a web page.

CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS FOR ANTI-VANDALISM TASK FORCE Cal Jennings has volunteered as the CCPA rep for the committee. Sue Collins is still looking for more volunteers from CCPA.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Dave Madsen announced that the Utah geological association field conference in September will be studying Paradox Basin. Dave wants participation from the archaeological community. He needs archaeological field stops, like excavations. For more information contact Madsen.

MORE NEWS ABOUT ROCKY MOUNTAIN ANTHROPOLOGY CONFERENCE PUBLICATION

Monograph will publish a combination of papers from both the first and second conferences. University of Utah is the publisher. Money from UPAC and CCPA will be used to reduce the price of the publication such that everyone can afford to purchase a copy.

Meeting adjourned.

MINUTES OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE COLORADO COUNCIL OF PROFESSIONAL ARCHAEOLOGISTS MARCH 15, 1996 Anasazi Heritage Center Dolores, Colorado

Attending: Susan Chandler - President; Jeff Eighmy - Past-President; Jeannie Mobley-Tanaka - Past-Treasurer; Bridget Ambler - Treasurer; Dan Jepson - Director; Rand Greubel - Past-Director; Bob Brunswig - President Elect; Ann Bond - Director; Bill Arbogast - Director; and Rosemary Succe -Secretary.

Issues arising from CCPA's involvement with State Historic Preservation Grants: Jeff is aware that CCPA's support of two grants places pressure on the treasurer's time and challenges her skills. Jeanne Mobley-Tanaka supports the organization's involvement with grant monies; it's a way to do archaeology with a limited budget. However, grant administration requires bookkeeping skills, accounting skills and knowledge of tax laws. Are we doing sales tax appropriately? How about the funds we raise through auctions? If CCPA takes in more than $10,000.00 in receipts, it is required to file federal taxes. Jeanne recommends that the board look at the issue of appointing a grant administrator. Jeanne also recommended that the executive committee develop guidelines for those individuals who wish to approach CCPA for support of their proposals. While CCPA may wish to support many worthy proposals, its ability to do so is constrained. Therefore, it would be wise to develop formal procedures for the acceptance or rejection of submittals and for the notification of applicants. Those present agreed that standardized accounting procedures should be developed. Some discussion occurred about having a professional accountant consult with the treasurer and the executive board about these issues.

Phil Duke raised the question as to whether CCPA should be in the business of sponsoring grants. While it may be worthwhile for the organization to pursue grants for its own needs, he suggests we examine acting as a conduit for other grants. It may well compromise our objectivity as one of the ethical watchdogs for archaeological projects in the state. How would we respond if one of the grants we sponsored involved unethical behavior? Bob Brunswig responded that the SAA formed a fundraising foundation. Bob will obtain their guidelines.

Updating the contexts:

Susan Chandler informed the board that Alan Reed has agreed to participate on a sub-committee to continue an investigation of this issue. Carol Gleichman will serve as chair. An invitation shall be extended to Susan Collins, as State Archaeologist, to participate on the committee. Rosemary Sucec also will serve on the committee. Participation from the membership is welcome.

Bob Brunswig questioned whether the contexts were necessary in the current format. Are there other ways we can serve our objectives? Is there a mechanism for planning and preservation without regional contexts?

Suggestion from Steve Baker:

As conveyed by Phil Duke, Steve Baker has suggested that CCPA undertake an effort to publish selected, best CRM reports. A review board could be established. This is one method by which to alleviate the grey literature access problem. Ann Bond suggested that the reports be listed in the ACLIN database.

Outgoing files:

Rosemary agreed to take files from out-going officers. She will be responsible for turning them over to Denver Public Library, Western History Department, at the end of her term, March 1997. Kae Mcdonald will provide to Rosemary a chronological sequence of newsletters for the archives from her term.

Members with a hiatus in the payment of dues: Though a recent newsletter stated it was necessary for members to pay back dues to be reinstated, that is not the case. Some members have had a lapse because they were attending graduate school and could not afford to maintain their membership. For those members who find themselves in this situation, the board agreed that they need to write a letter requesting reinstatement. When they pay dues, it will apply to the current year. This system will be instituted in 1997 and announced in the January edition of the CCPA newsletter.

Membership directory update: The cost of doing an annual update in the newsletter is prohibitive. Kae informed the group that 175 newsletters are mailed with a cost of between .60 and $1.25. Some believe such a directory is useful. One suggestion was made include the directory in a packet provided to those who register for the annual meeting. Another was to bulk mail the newsletters. Another suggestion was made to include a date that membership expires on the address label. At expiration, that individual would no longer continue to receive a newsletter. This last suggestion shall be implemented in 1997.

Proposed amendment change: There was a brief discussion about the issues raised concerning the proposed change to the code of ethics. The group felt that membership generally supported the intent, but wanted it to be re-evaluated to address expressed concerns. Bill Arbogast, Ann Bond, and Rosemary Succe will meet and report to the executive committee in July. Participation by other members is welcome.

Next board meeting:

All agreed they would meet in Glenwood Springs on July 13.

WARD F. WEAKLY MEMORIAL FUND REPORT Colorado Council of Professional Archaeologists Annual Meeting March 15, 1996

This past fall three Ward F. Weakly Memorial Fund scholarships were awarded, making a total of eleven scholarships that CCPA has provided during the four years that the program has had sufficient dollars to be in business. Awards have totaled almost $4000 ($3979.75). Currently, there are four applications under review that were received by the March 1, 1996 deadline. While the scholarship committee has evaluated these requests, CCPA is in the position of having insufficient funds to cover all deserving applicants. So we are waiting until after completion of this year's Ward F. Weakly Memorial Fund book sale to make final decisions.

The past year's awardees are Mark Mitchell, Stephen Sherman, and Angelia Rayne. Mitchell, who is a student at the University of Colorado, Denver, received funding to help support his research on the Upper Purgatorie Complex, specifically ceramic source analysis. Mitchell also received a Colorado Historic Preservation Grant to further his studies.

Stephen Sherman was awarded funds to acquire two statistical computer programs to support his Master's Thesis research. He is investigating the application of quantitative spatial analysis methods to describe surface and subsurface artifact distributions prior to excavation; his focus is on the Hudson-Meng Paleoindian site. Sherman is a student at Colorado State University.

Funds were awarded Angelia Rayne to participate in the Laramie Plains Anthropological Conference where she presented the results of her Colorado eastern foothills research. Ms. Rayne is a student at the University of Colorado, Denver.

In addition to awarding these scholarships, the Ward Weakly Scholarship Committee also rejected a request for support of lodging for Japanese scientists participating in a Ground Penetrating Radar Applications in Archaeology Conference at the University of Colorado, Boulder. The request was received in May - the month of the conference - not in a timely manner for consideration. The committee also responded to several requests for information about the program and updated the two flyers covering the scholarship to deal with several technical changes.

At this annual meeting, the scholarship fund committee is again hosting a CCPA Used Book Sale to provide funds to continue providing support for students whose work contributes to a better understanding of Colorado archeology. Again, we have a generous contribution from Charles Weeth, Janet Weeth's father. The committee appreciates the help and assistance from all of you who (1) contribute items for the book sale and (2) purchase books to support the scholarship.

Just prior to this annual meeting, the Memorial Fund balance was $958.00. The deadlines for scholarship application review continue to be March 1 and October 1 of each year.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE REPORT

The membership committee reviewed applications for CCPA membership twice times during 1995-1996. Two associate members, four voting member and one American Indian voting member were approved by the membership committee last year. They are:

Associate

Richard F. Madole Angela M. Rayne

Voting Don Fiero Ted Hoefer Mark Mitchell Mary Painter

American Indian Voting Mr. Leigh Jenkins

There is one complete application for associate membership received March 1996 in the files. There are three incomplete applications, including one membership upgrade request, in the files. These require various quantities of information before they can be reviewed. In addition, 29 individuals have requested application forms since 1992 (most in 1995 and 1996), but have not returned them. Four American Indians have expressed an interest in joining the CCPA as American Indian voting members. I have written each of them describing the information needed to process their applications. I hope we will hear from them in the near future.

I will be happy to serve on the committee for the 1996-1997 year. At present, I have not asked the other two members, Steve Kalasz and Dan Jepson, whether they are willing to serve another year. If they are not, I will ask the President to appoint succeeding membership committee participants.

Respectfully submitted,

Jane L. Anderson Committee chairwoman

WHAT DO WE DO?

OPTIONS	RELATED INFORMATION
Update the contexts by region.	The existing contexts are organized by regions of the state. Questions to be resolved include whether to update all five simultaneously or one-at-a-time. Bill Butler, in his symposium paper, recommends a process for updating the regional contexts. He assumes that CCPA would be responsible for the endeavor and suggests the following steps as a means to equitably distribute the labor: (1) devise a computerized form with which to update the contexts from reports written since 1984; (2) individuals with regional expertise use this form for reviewing and annotating those reports; and (3) a panel of regional "experts" would assume responsibility for producing the updates.
Don't update the regional contexts. Instead, do multiple property listings for associated property types, i.e., the document would detail the property types associated with a particular period or culture, identify eligibility criteria, and address important research questions for the property types.	OAHP is currently financing and administering through contracts the production of select multiple property listings. To date, they have produced the Great Pueblo Period of the McElmo Drainage Unit ; Archaic Period Architectural Sites in Colorado ; Prehistoric Paleo-Indian Cultures of the Colorado Plains , among others.
Membership at annual meeting would grant to CCPA executive committee the authority to form a task force to resolve the problem. Allow the executive committee to act on the task force's recommendation without a vote of the membership.	Ask for volunteers to participate on the task force at the annual meeting.
Do nothing ● 𝔄.

HOW DO WE DO IT?

OPTIONS	RELATED INFORMATION
CCPA finances the updating by applying for a State Historical Fund grant and administers updating through contracts.	 CCPA would be responsible for writing the proposal and administering the money. Would require significant amounts of volunteer time including: writing the proposal; obtaining cash and in-kind contributions; administering the grant monies; reviewing proposals from and selecting contractors to do the work; editing manuscripts; and ensuring the products meet professional standards. Respondents to the newsletter survey suggested that if CCPA does apply for a grant, it should involve the Colorado Historical Society (CHS), Colorado Archaeological Society (CAS), Colorado Preservation Inc. (CPI), the CU Center in Cortez and/or seek matching funds from corporate sponsors. Recommendations were also made to begin the process by applying for a small planning grant and to seek in-kind contributions/sweat equity from contractors who will draft the contexts or multiple property listings. Bill Butler, in his symposium paper, recommends that CCPA apply for these grant monies.
SHPO finances the updating and administers it through contracts.	SHPO has the discretionary authority to use existing Historic Preservation Funds or to use lottery money (called, in Colorado, the "State Historical Fund") for these purposes. This option was the preferred alternative of the twelve CCPA members who responded to the newsletter survey.
	Additionally, of the nine Western SHPOs surveyed who have contexts/multiple property listings, all finance and administer the production of the documents.
"Hybridity"	What would a hybrid of the first two options look like, such that both SHPO and CCPA would invest amounts of energy and resources? What creative options might exist?
SHPO or CCPA solicit matching funds from federal agencies to do the updating.	Wyoming has a cooperative agreement with federal land-managing agencies to produce thematic contexts that are mutually beneficial, e.g. sheep ranching.
